INTRODUCTION

Since 1972, RTNDA and RTNDF have tracked the progress of people of color and women in television and radio news careers, particularly in news management positions. Based on this annual baseline data, RTNDF has shown that journalists of color have made some, but not nearly enough, progress into the upper ranks of our nation's radio and television newsrooms.

RTNDA's Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) Committee, chaired by Paul Davis, generated a number of new ideas to address this issue, one of which was to create and distribute this guide of recruiting resources for women and people of color.

The goal of the Newsroom Diversity Project is to increase the number of people of color and women in television news careers, with the strongest emphasis on news management. This is accomplished through the dual strategies of better preparing students and young journalists, as well as providing current news management with tools needed to move toward their diversity goals.

This is the seventh edition of the RTNDF directory. Recruiting for Diversity: A News Managers' Guide updates the previous edition's listings of more than 200 local and national public and private resources for finding candidates for jobs in electronic news. More than 5,500 copies of this guide have been distributed to journalists, RTNDA members, and attendees of RTNDA@NAB and other conventions in past years.

We encourage you to download and/or photocopy additional copies of this directory for your staff.

RTNDF has made every effort to as complete a resource as possible. We welcome and appreciate your suggestions for additions or changes to this directory because your feedback is essential to making this resource as current and useful as possible.

Please contact Karen Jackson – Bullitt (karenb@rtndf.org) with suggestions.

ABOUT THE RADIO AND TELEVISION NEWS DIRECTORS FOUNDATION

Mission

The Radio and Television News Directors Foundation (RTNDF) provides training programs, seminars, scholarship support and research in areas of critical concern to electronic news professionals and their audience.

As the educational arm of the Radio-Television News Directors Association, RTNDF offers professional development opportunities for working and aspiring journalists and journalism educators. The Foundation's primary objectives include:

- Promoting discussion of ethics and integrity in news coverage
- Developing leadership skills among news professionals and sound management practices in news organizations
- Encouraging diversity in news organizations and in news coverage
- Assessing the impact of technological change on the news industry
- Fostering exchanges of ideas and perspectives at the local, national and international levels
- Supporting U.S. First Amendment rights, worldwide press freedom, and the public's right to know.

RTNDF is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit charitable organization supported by foundations, corporations and individuals. Contributions to RTNDF are tax-deductible to the maximum extent allowable by law.

Programs

In 2004, RTNDF will conduct programs in the following areas:

NEWS CONTENT

- Providing resources and programs to help electronic journalists cover a range of issues such as bioterrorism, children's health and election coverage.

ETHICS IN JOURNALISM

- Encouraging high standards of journalism by providing news professionals with resources and training to make ethical decisions under pressure.

NEWS LEADERSHIP

- Enhancing managerial and news judgment skills for television news leaders and managers.

JOURNALISM EDUCATION

- High School Electronic Journalism Project, educating young people about the principles and values inherent in the First Amendment and supporting their efforts to practice good journalism.
- Educator in the Newsroom, improving relations between newsrooms and colleges and universities to foster well-educated future workforce.

NEWSROOM DIVERSITY

- Broadcast Management Fellowships for women and journalists of color.
- Newsroom Diversity Toolkit to emphasize benefits of having diverse news management staffs.
- Scholarships, fellowships and internships for students and news professionals.

FUTURE OF NEWS

- Examining the impact of new communications technologies on journalism through research, publications and ongoing educational programs.

INTERNATIONAL JOURNALISM

- German/American Journalist Exchange, enhancing journalists' understanding of the culture, politics, economics, social issues and journalism practices of Germany and the United States.

NEWSROOM DIVERSITY PROJECT

The goal of the Radio and Television News Directors Foundation's Newsroom Diversity Project is to increase the number of people of color and women in television news careers, with the strongest emphasis on news management. This is accomplished through the dual strategies of better preparing students and young journalists, as well as providing current news managers with tools needed to move toward their diversity goals.

Since RTNDF began the Newsroom Diversity Project in 1992, more than 1,000 students and young professionals have benefited from participation in our scholarship, internship, student mentoring, fellowship and news management-training programs for journalists of color. Equally important, RTNDF's programs for managers have helped more than 1,200 television and radio news managers diversify their newsrooms and avoid stereotypes in their newscasts.

To achieve its goal of hiring, training, advancing and retaining people of color and women in television, radio and online news management careers, RTNDF's Newsroom Diversity Project provides:

- ◆ Scholarships, internships, guidance and counseling programs for journalism students of color to make them aware of career options in electronic news and to help them land their first newsroom positions. RTNDF also hosts mentoring and other career-support events to expose students of color to the full breadth of television, radio and online news careers, including management alternatives to on-air positions
- ◆ Fellowships, tape critiques, workshops for young women and professionals of color at the conventions of the four associations representing journalists of color provide the resources and training needed to advance in the industry.
- ◆ Information about diversity and its benefits to current managers and executives who are responsible for hiring and managing newsroom personnel.
